News / K1-kudo Inventory Added At Austria's Redline Enterprises

May 2011

Redline Enterprises, Austria's largest full-service provider of technical equipment for events, has purchased an L-ACOUSTICS K1/KUDO system consisting of 48 K1s and 36 KUDO WST@ line source cabinets, 24 K1-SB and 24 SB2B subwoofers and 18 LA-RAK with 54 LA8 amplified controllers. This is the first K1 system in the Austrian market.

"The reason we bought the K1 system was the quality and its high international standard," says Jack Langer, CEO of Redline. "Our new L-ACOUSTICS K1 system will push our company to a much higher level. Apart from the sound capabilities of the system, we particularly like the handling of the rigging as well as the digital network integration."

Adds L-ACOUSTICS trainer Sherif el Barbari, who carried out training, "Yet again another highly professional provider, who's already been using L-ACOUSTICS products including V-DOSC and DV-DOSC, has made the step to the top level of large scale sound reinforcement. During the three training days in Vienna, I was happy to work with a group of experienced engineers who are responsible for designing and operating the biggest shows in Austria. All attendants proved to have a thorough understanding of WST@ and it was a pleasure to introduce them to the newest guidelines and improvements of K1, and how to benefit most when using the systems in their future applications."

Redline's new K1 system has a busy summer ahead. First up is the world's biggest AIDS charity event in Vienna, Life Ball, with special guest Janet Jackson, which is being broadcast live to TV. It will also be used at the Konzert Für Europa classical concert at the Castle Schönbrunn, Vienna, featuring the Austrian Philharmonic Orchestra before an audience of 150,000; also a live TV broadcast. Other major events for Redline's K1 are Austrian rock festivals Nova Rock and Frequency.
